

THE GREAT NATIONAL PARKS FROM YELLOWSTONE TO THE PACIFIC

The imposing mountain barrier of the Rockies delineates a wild environment, a sublime setting for a grand journey through the Canadian West to Yellowstone. Emerald lakes, ancient glaciers, alpine meadows, primeval forests, and snow-capped peaks await us in the land of grizzlies and elk. Starting from Vancouver, we cross British Columbia towards the province of Alberta. Whistler emerges amidst the Coastal Mountains and Garibaldi Park. Upon reaching the Canadian Rockies, we discover Maligne Lake and Canyon, Mount Edith Cavell, and its Angel Glacier in Jasper National Park. Glaciers and their tongues feed into stunning emerald lakes nestled at the bottom of immense wooded valleys. Then, heading south, we venture to Yoho National Park via the Columbia Icefield Parkway. We hike to Takakkaw Falls before crossing into the United States. On the road, we traverse Banff National Park, where hot springs take the spotlight. On the American side, Glacier National Park unfolds fascinating landscapes of mountains and glaciers. Further south, the terrain becomes more arid, the rocks more colorful. Yellowstone, like a fireworks display of geysers and rainbow-colored hot springs, reminds us of the sheer power of nature.

During your stay, drinks including mineral water are at your expense. You can refill your water bottles in villages, springs, and hotels. It is advisable to treat it with purifying tablets (such as micropur or hydrochlorazone). Avoid buying plastic bottles that need to be recycled as much as possible. If you need to buy bottled water, we recommend buying 10-liter (or 5-liter) bottles to refill your bottles as needed. This authorization is valid for 2 years until the passport expires. Adults and children (regardless of age) are subject to this procedure. The form can be completed no later than 72 hours before departure, but it is recommended to do so as soon as the trip is planned.

This service is now chargeable: approx. 21 USD.

ALTAI USA cannot be held responsible in the event that you need to return to France due to non-compliance with these personal health obligations.

No mandatory vaccinations are required for entry into the USA, but we recommend that you keep up to date with routine vaccinations.

Weather

The climate is temperate in most parts of the country. Generally, temperatures increase as you head south. The differences between seasons are more pronounced in the northern or inland regions. In winter, the Northeast and the northern part of the central plain can experience long periods with temperatures below zero, while at the same time, it can still be warm enough to swim in Florida (which enjoys a tropical climate) and in the southern part of California.

In Idaho: Mountainous continental climate: excursions take place between 2,000 m and 3,300 m above sea level. It can be hot, but temperatures cool down in the evening or when the sky is overcast. Average temperatures from June to September range from 16°C to 22°C. There's little risk of rain, but it's always wise to be prepared for it. It's slightly cooler in early June, with a slight risk of snow in early October.

In New Mexico: The four seasons are mild. The latitude allows for year-round stays (best period: from February to May and from September to November). From June to August, temperatures are hot (35°C to 40°C), but the surrounding mountains, with peaks at 2500m, allow for maximum activity. Winters are also mild from December to January (minimum 5°C). The region enjoys 345 days of sunshine per year and a blue sky all year round.

Electricity

As in all of North America, the electrical system operates on 120 volts (60 cycles). The plugs have two flat prongs. To use your electrical appliances, you must therefore have an adapter and a transformer.

Altai USA is committed to organizing trips that adhere to equitable principles:

- Developing quality tourism both in terms of services provided to travelers and in optimizing local economic benefits.
- Remunerating services at fair prices. Improving the working conditions of local teams.
- Transmitting know-how to local teams. Informing and raising awareness among travelers.
- Participating in research projects of international and national institutions for the development of ecotourism.
- Engaging in concrete actions for environmental protection and sustainable development.

For obvious ecological reasons, Atalante has decided to no longer offer plastic bottled water on its tours. Atalante encourages its travelers to treat water with purifying tablets and to avoid, as much as possible, purchasing plastic bottles in countries where they are not recycled.

Topography

The continental United States extends from East to West, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean. It shares borders with Canada to the north and Mexico to the south. Alaska forms a protrusion to the northwest of Canada, and the Hawaiian Islands are located in the middle of the Pacific, 4,000 km from the west coast. The country has three major mountain ranges: the Appalachians in the East, the Rockies in the West, and the Sierra Nevada on the border between Nevada and California. It is endowed with abundant natural resources and vast expanses of fertile land.

The most populous region, the Atlantic coast, bears the imprint of its European heritage. It is home to the oldest cities, such as Boston, New York, Washington DC, and Philadelphia, and was the scene of the country's major events at the beginning of its history.

Watered by the Mississippi, Missouri, and Ohio rivers, the central region is the country's breadbasket.

Further west, the Great Plains and their pastures are cowboy country. The desert predominates in the Southwest, where population density remains very low due to the climate and the poverty of the soil.

On the other side of the Sierra Nevada, the West Coast was settled by Americans only 150 years ago but has since thrown itself headlong into the future.
